HONGKONG, DECEMBER 27th, 1913.

NATIONAL budgets presented to any country seldom pass without criticism, and in Japan the financial statements are usually very strongly attacked. The precise form of the budget for 1914-15 will not be known until it is submitted to Parliament in the coming week, but the general outline of the Government's plans is already known, and as it roughly coincides with the speech by the Minister of Finance at the annual Banquet given by the Bankers' Association (an annual occasion at which the Minister is expected to give a forecast of the Government's financial policy as embodied in the forthcoming budget), it may be assumed that the information already made public is accurate. Broadly speaking, the new budget is to follow established lines. There will be no new departure. There is to be further retrenchment and postponement of expenditure on continuing works, a small reduction is to be effected in one or two taxes, and there will be an increased vote for the Navy. There is to be no revision of the system of levying or spending, though it remains to-day a patchwork system produced in a hurry to meet the exigencies of a great war. The Budget is to remain the thing of wonderful complexity that it has long been; the taxes are to remain for another year pretty much what they were in time of war. Nothing is said about the removal of the obnoxious duty on rice, nor the alteration of the anomalous transit dues, nor the reduction or withdrawal of the shipping subsidies. Taxation, direct and indirect, remains too high, unequal in its incidence and unnecessarily complicated. But reform is not even contemplated. It is good, of course, that the need of economy has been so well recognised by the last three Ministries and that the waste in some of the Government departments has been eliminated. But retrenchment can be carried too far. Retrenchment is a part of reform. But it is the negative side, and the negative is not enough—a positive is demanded. Retrenchment last year and the postponement of expenditure or work already started produced a surplus of 70,000,000 yen, and it is expected that the continuance of this policy will produce a surplus of nearly 60,000,000 yen at the end of the year 1914-15, or a total of nearly 130,000,000 yen. No wonder critics were led to express their sympathy for a Government which has more money than it knows how to dispose of, but, needless to say, such sympathy was expressed with tongue in cheek. In the good time coming, when this money is available—new consulates will be established abroad, several being in China, the warship and torpedo fund, which was reduced during the late war by 10,000,000 yen, will be supplemented, an appropriation will be made in the interests of military aviation and automobiling, the telephone service will be extended, subsidies will be given for harbour construction and improvement in various districts, and productive industries for the relief of sufferers from famine in the Hokkaido and north-eastern districts will be inaugurated. All these, according to Baron TAKAHASHI, the Minister of Finance, are to come in the sweet by and by when the big surplus mentioned has been realised. The burden of taxation, under which the people groan, is to be lightened in the following year, and if it is deferred but not made the heart-sick, the Japanese may be able to extract some comfort from this promise. The good time ahead is also to be marked by the continuation of the policy of redeeming the National Debt annually by 50,000,000 yen. To reduce the National Debt is a laudable ambition, but to reduce the National Debt while the necessity for fresh loans is so apparent is a piece of budgeting which is rather difficult to understand. It savours somewhat of what we would term "look-see pigdign." It is part of the scheme to create an impression among the people that the financial position is better than it really is. If the economic position of Japan is as sound as it is declared to be, the wisdom of such tactics is to be questioned. The trade returns certainly show indications of a healthy expansion. There is abundant evidence of industrial manufacturing enterprise, of the development of agriculture and sericulture, the increase of marine products, and so on. But that progress, great as it is, is restricted by the tightness of money in the country and the starving of public utilities. The means of communication need to be extended and in other directions development is urgently required. But the money necessary for the extension of railways is withheld, harbour construction is delayed, the postal department is badly served, the telephone service is little short of a scandal, and roads and thoroughfares are practically in a primitive condition. Most of these undertakings would be remunerative, and ordinary business sense would suggest that these works should be commenced at once. Yet, with these facts staring them in the face the YAMAMOTO Cabinet propose the reduction of the National Debt. How long this policy will be continued cannot be prophesied, but it may be prophesied that the time is not far off when Japan will come into the money market for a loan for these purposes. Some day, Japan's Napoleon of Finance will arise and take command of the situation.

H.M.S. Newcastle is going North to relieve the Yarmouth about the 10th proximo.

Lady Chater returned on Christmas Day from England by the N.D.L. mail steamer Lutetia.

Mr. W. W. Rockhill, formerly United States Ambassador at St. Petersburg and Minister to China, recently left Khabarovka for Ula to investigate trade conditions in Mongolia.

The Hon Mr. Shellim and Mrs. Shellim and Mr. A. David were among the passengers from Shanghai to arrive on Christmas Day by the Empress of Russia. Mr. and Mrs. G. Zundel, formerly of Canton, arrived in Hongkong on Christmas Day by the Lutetia from Singapore. They are proceeding to Shanghai where Mr. Zundel we understand, is opening a depot of the Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Co., Ltd.

A Chinese who had received sentence of three months' hard labour at the Magistracy yesterday for housebreaking attempted to cheat the officials at Victoria Gaol of his society for that period, and, wriggling from the clutch of the policeman who had charge of him, ran out into the road, where, however, his flight was arrested. He was then conveyed to his compulsory place of abode.

According to the Peking Gazette, it is said in Chinese circles that the Foreign Diplomatic Body wishes Vice-President Li to call on the Legations first on the ground that Dr. Sun Yat-sen did so when he paid his first visit to Peking. But the Vice-President holds that Dr. Sun called on the foreign diplomats in the capacity of an ordinary citizen and thinks they ought to be the first ones to call.

At the Magistracy yesterday, before Mr. J. R. Wood, several Chinese shopkeepers were charged by Sergt. R. C. Watt with offences under the Stamp Ordinance. One man, representing the Lee Yim firm, had no fewer than eleven charges preferred against him, all of failing to cancel the revenue stamp. He denied any intention of defrauding the Government, and alleged that it was the fault of his foki, who did not understand the "business." He was fined $10 on each charge, $110 in all.

RETURN OF H.E. THE GOVERNOR.

A QUIET CHRISTMAS MORNING CEREMONY.

Just after 9 o'clock on Christmas morning His Excellency the Governor, Sir Francis Henry May, K.C.M.G., returned to the Colony after his short leave of absence, having travelled out by the Siberian route, accompanied by Miss May. The Empress of Russia, on which the Governor had come down from Shanghai, arrived about 8 a.m.

There was no extensive ceremonial scheme. Blake Pier was made to look more inviting with foliage adornments and a scarlet carpet, and His Excellency, who appeared to be in the best of health was welcomed by the officers of the Government, including His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Hon. Mr. Claud Severn, H.E. Major-General Kelly, Capt. Connolly, A.D.C.; and the Hon. Mr. A. G. M. Fletcher, and members of the Legislative Council. The weather was made unpleasant with fitful showers, but in spite of this a large number of residents assembled to extend their welcome.

It was intended that the route to Government House should be by way of Statue Square, and lines of police had been stationed in readiness. At the last moment, however, His Excellency decided to proceed via Pedder Street and the arrangement of the police underwent a lightning change. When this had been done His Excellency and Miss May were conveyed in chairs to Government House, a bodyguard being formed of Indian police.

On account of its being Christmas Day there was no salute of guns, this being reserved until yesterday morning. The original arrangement of the presence of a band and a guard of honour was abandoned on Wednesday morning.

CHRISTMAS TRAGEDIES.

FIRE PANIC IN AMERICA.

EIGHTY PERSONS, MOSTLY CHILDREN, KILLED.

CALUMET (Michigan), Dec. 25th.

Eighty persons, mostly children, were killed in a panic caused by a false alarm of fire at a Christmas tree celebration, in aid of the copper miners who are on strike.

The children had finished their recitations and songs, and were crowding towards the stage to receive presents when a bearded man thrust his head in at the door and yelled fire. Immediately a panic reigned and men, women and children rushed for the exits. The weaker persons were thrown to the floor, those behind climbed over the prostrate ones and the stairways were so completely blocked up that the egress or ingress of the rescuers was impossible.

When the panic had subsided the stairway was completely choked, the dead extending from the steps to the ceiling. The dead included 37 girls, 10 boys, 13 women and five men. The other bodies were carried away before their sex or age could be ascertained.

Painful scenes followed the catastrophe, women rushing hither and thither calling in various foreign tongues the names of their missing children.

The originator of the panic made good his escape.

DUTCH TRAIN DISASTER.

SON OF PREMIER AND FOUR OTHERS KILLED.

AMSTERDAM, December 25th.

Five persons were killed and twelve injured by a train derailment near Croningen, the son of the Premier, Mr. Van der Linden, was among those killed.

EXPLOSION AT ITALIAN FIREWORKS FACTORY.

FOURTEEN KILLED AND FIVE INJURED.

NAPLES, December 25th.

Eight people were killed and five injured as the result of an explosion at a fireworks factory at Torre del Annunziata, Naples.

LATER.

The casualties are now given as 14 killed and five injured.

AMERICAN CURRENCY REFORM.

"A CONSTITUTION OF PEACE."

WASHINGTON, December 25th.

President Wilson's signing of the Currency Bill was the signal for enthusiastic applause. The President said that the constructive measures of the Democrats would show that they knew how to serve the country. The Tariff Bill was a great piece of preparation for the achievements by American commerce and industry which would be certain to follow the Currency Bill. It furnished machinery for free, elastic, and uncontrolled credits for the first time in 50 years. He emphasised that business men were realising the necessity for readjustments of the nation's business, and they were instituting what was characterised as a Constitution of Peace.

PANAMA CANAL TOLLS.

THE QUESTION OF EXEMPTION OF AMERICAN VESSELS.

WASHINGTON, December 25th.

The Chairman of the Commerce Committee has introduced into the House of Representatives a resolution suspending the provision for exempting United States coasting vessels from payment of the Panama Canal tolls for two years, after which the President shall have the right to enforce exemption if diplomatic questions are adjusted and the revenues from the other vessels suffice to defray the Canal expenses.

It is understood that President Wilson entirely approves of the resolution as an easier means of avoiding difficulties than the repeal of the Exemption provision in the Bill.

XMAS AT HOME.

MOST SEASONABLE FOR YEARS.

Christmas-Day at Home was the finest and coldest for years. There was a bright dry frost in the early morning, and snowstorms in the North of England and Scotland. The railways were overcrowded in the rush to the coast and the Continent, especially to Switzerland.

Their Majesties the King and Queen celebrated Christmas in homely fashion at Sandringham. A big business was done in Over-seas cable greetings, and the Churches in London were crowded in the morning. The town was deserted in the evening, very few motor-buses or taxi-cabs running. There were gay scenes at the places of entertainment, hotels, and restaurants, where seats were at a premium.

THE MEXICAN REBELLION.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

JUAREZ, December 25th.

The rebels have recaptured Torreon after heavy fighting, in which twelve thousand were engaged. There were many killed.

JAPAN AND MEXICO.

PRESIDENT HUERTA'S ENVOY TO JAPAN ENTHUSIASTICALLY WELCOMED.

TOKYO, December 25th.

Senor Delabarro, the special envoy of President Huerta to thank Japan for participating in the Mexican Centenary, is having an enthusiastic welcome in Tokyo. He has agreed to accept at a public reception two swords of honour from the Japanese people. There is to be a mass meeting, with a lantern procession in his honour on Friday.

The demonstration undoubtedly possesses a political character. There has been considerable anti-American feeling in Japan lately.

LATER.

Senor Delabarro has been granted an audience by the Emperor, and afterwards dined with his Majesty.

BRITISH STEAMER'S PLIGHT.

FIRE ON BY MOORS WHILE AGROUND.

GIBRALTAR, December 26th.

The British seamer Ludgate ran ashore on the African coast opposite Tarifa. Moors fired on the vessel, wounding a seaman. The cruiser Rosburgh and the Spanish battleship Pelayo are steaming to the vessel's assistance. Salvage operations have been suspended owing to the hostilities of the Moors. A salvage steamer has gone to the wreck with two Gatlings and a British Naval picket abroad.

THE COLOUR CONFLICT IN SOUTH AFRICA.

DURBAN, December 25th.

The Government has rejected Mr. Ghandi's demands for the addition of representatives in the Indian interests on the Natal Commission, and for the release of all imprisoned passive resisters.

FRENCH FINANCES.

NEW MILITARY AND NAVAL LOAN.

PARIS, December 25th.

M. Caillaux has announced that the Budget Committee intends to issue a redeemable loan, to cover extraordinary Military and Naval expenditure, exceeding £36,000,000 and that the Government will authorize the issue in Paris of the Russian and Serbian loans, promised by his predecessors.

It is believed that M. Caillaux will allow these loans to be issued before the French loans.

HARROW SCHOOLBOY'S DEATH.

QUARTER OF A MILLION FOR CHARITIES.

LONDON, December 25th.

A Harrow schoolboy, seventeen years of age, named Geoffrey Ansell, has just died as the result of injuries sustained whilst tobogganing on the Cresta run two years ago. Under his father's will, £250,000 out of an estate of £300,000, which the deceased boy would have inherited if he had attained his majority, will go to London charities, principally hospitals. His father was Mr. Charles Ansell, a member of the firm of Ansell, Mankiewicz & Tallerman. He made his fortune during the South African boom in 1895.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCOUTS' FIELD DAY.

A LETTER FROM SIR R. BADEN-POWELL.

The recently-formed St. Joseph's College troop of Boy Scouts took part in their first field operations yesterday. At 9.15 a.m. the Scouts and a bodyguard fell in at the Catholic Cathedral Compound, and were inspected by Scoutmaster A. J. Edwards, assisted by Sergt. Brookes. The muster consisted of 65 of the Boy Scouts and 25 of the bodyguard, all wearing their full uniforms and badges. During the inspection, Scoutmaster Edwards read the following letter which had been received by him from the Chief Scout, Sir Robert Baden-Powell, in acknowledgment of congratulations at the birth of "the Youngest Scout."

I was very pleased to receive your letter of November 24th and to know that a troop of Boy Scouts has now been started in Hongkong. I have been interested to read an account in the magazine that was sent to me, of their inauguration, and send my warmest wishes for the success of the troop. Pioneer work is most difficult, as the boys have to put up with a certain amount of chaffing when they first begin, but I am sure that, like all other Scouts, they will not be worried by it, but go straight ahead with their work and become a credit to their troop. With many thanks for your kind congratulations on the birth of the latest tenderfoot, believe me,

Yours very truly,

ROBERT BADEN-POWELL.

When the Scouts had formed up, they marched out to Pokfulam, where the field exercises were worked out. The plan of operations was that the bodyguard formed the defending party and held the Monastery, and the Boy Scouts formed the attacking party. At the conclusion of the manoeuvres the Scouts were marched back to the college for tiffin. In the afternoon a capital sports programme was carried out, tea and cakes being provided by friends of the boys, who had also subscribed for no less than a hundred prizes. These were handed to the winners by Bishop Pozzoni.

THE ARMS TRAFFIC.

MAGISTRATE AND GUN-RUNNERS' INGENUITY.

The devices of the Chinese gun-runner are manifold and wonderfully ingenious. Before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Magistracy yesterday morning, several cases were brought by the police in which Chinese returning to their native land from Canada were charged with being in unlawful possession of arms and ammunition on the Empress of Russia. Two men charged by Sergt. Lamont were fined $50 each for possession of over 1,000 rounds of ammunition between them, concealed in false-bottomed passenger trunks.

Another man, charged by the same officer with possession of 1,550 rounds of rifle ammunition, was discharged, it being proved to the Magistrate's satisfaction that he was carrying it for another party. Mr. Faithfull defended. Mr. B. C. Faithfull defended a Chinese who had concealed four pounds of gunpowder very cleverly in the hollow of a harpsichord and a quantity of ammunition hidden in the bottom of a small oil-stove. His Worship disbelieved the story of the defendant, who went into the witness-box and stated that the articles were given to him by another man to convey to China, and fined him $100 on the first charge and $150 on the second.

In the case of a man charged with the possession of 700 rounds of ammunition, which was concealed in a series of holes drilled perpendicularly into the sides of a big wooden box, Mr. Faithfull, for the defence, urged that the man was going back to his native place, which was in a very disturbed state, and he carried the ammunition for safety.

His Worship—But 700 rounds is a pretty large quantity!

Mr. Faithfull—He was not to know what he would meet there. There is nothing like preparing for eventualities, and keeping a store. (Laughter.)

His Worship called Mr. Faithfull's attention to the box in which the ammunition was honeycombed, and said that the ingenuity of these gun-runners was really remarkable. If he had the time he would write a book on the subject.

The maximum fine of $250 was imposed, or in the alternative three months in Victoria Gaol.

One man, charged by Sergt. Pincoff, had seen 250 rounds of ammunition with extraordinary skill all round a huge coloured blanket, and his Worship asked the man how long he took to do it. The defendant replied that he did not know. A clansman of his asked him to bring it. Fined $250, or three months.

Another man had seen a rifle inside his mattress, and concealed his ammunition in a number of soap boxes, in some of which were packets of soap. Fined $250, or three months.

THE INDIAN "AMOK" CASE.

At the Magistracy yesterday, before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, an Indian watchman, who figured in the scene at Kowloon recently, was charged with assaulting two soldiers.

Inspector Murrison asked for a remand. The defendant is alleged to have run "amok" on the 7th inst., and assaulted several people.

His Worship—Is this the man who is supposed to be mad?

Inspector Murrison replied in the affirmative, and his Worship granted the remand, ordering the defendant to be placed under medical observation.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS.
AND A SEARCH FOR THE SAME.

Has anyone discovered the Spirit of Christmas? For days I have been searching in all sorts of obscure places, and in the open have scanned passing faces in an effort to discover a festive smile, something to indicate that the festival of festivals is here, but almost in vain. At least I was not satisfied. That very real Spirit of Christmas which used to make merry in the youthful days of Dickens, and around which the then young journalist wrote realistically, is vanishing, if it has not already vanished. At Home it has been slowly disappearing, and in the East, where wandering Europeans assemble, the Spirit seems to have been laid, only to rise fitfully. That happy combination of a due sacred appreciation of the lonely shepherds and an equally lonely Mother and Child, along with jovial gatherings is slowly—and the decline is obvious—losing its fascination on a most fickle-minded public. That is to be deplored.

And with such a state of things developing at Home, what can one seriously expect from Britons who are thousands of miles away from home and their family folk? Naturally, an even less regard for that Spirit which I have been seeking. He has been shunned, and when at last I did discover the outcast he was sullen, and appeared moodily resigned to his obvious fate—obscenity and oblivion. Endeavouring to find comfort where the wind blew sharpest he was in no mood to return greetings. In a feeble voice, and waving a ghostly hand, he said, "Look around and then wonder why I grovel and groan." And, saying such, he dropped his head so low that he became a ball, and in the next minute he had vanished.

Then I commenced to follow the poor Spirit's direction. He had reason to be sad of his treatment in the East; you see, he does not yet understand the evolution of human nature, and the influence of environment. Only a few of the shops looked at all Christmassy, there were no fantastically delighted children to appreciate the latest sensations in toys; whirling aeroplanes, dangerous war vessels which actually live in water-tubs, the most ugly and funny in grotesque goliwogs, and large blue-eyed dolls which stare tentatively, and sleep when they are tilted. These were bought by solemn-faced fathers or anxious-looking mothers. I observed few of those little shopping-scenes, with father and mother and the youngsters. Each silent shopper seemed full of his or her own thoughts, and the goliwogs looked funny in vain. One incident I witnessed revealed that the "goodwill to all men" feeling has not ceased to operate in all. A big and gruff-looking seafaring man's bargain for a doll with lavishly golden hair and blue eyes was watched by four little Chinese eyes, whose faces were literally glued to the window of what to them was a fairy palace. By some wonderful intuition the A.B. caught the hungry look. It cost him another doll, but he brought happy smiles to two sorrowful and sad faces. The Spirit of Christmas had won his way there.

All the while the air seemed muggy and balmy. There was no sharp snap of frost to make one's blood run quickly, no carol singers' voices told you of the good King Wenceslaus and his charitable act in the snow, or the angel-setting of the manger-cradle. Now and again you heard laughing, and people making merry in a friendly gathering. But the real Spirit, or atmosphere, was gone. I thought of the poor banished Spirit and in desperation stirred up a fire, selected a favourite pipe, puffed out huge volumes of smoke and conjured up distant faces in the wreaths as they floated for a while and then vanished.

THE CHAIR OF CHINESE AT KING'S COLLEGE.

MR. BACKHOUSE APPOINTED.

The Times understands that Mr. E. Backhouse, who has recently made a generous gift of valuable Chinese books and printed manuscripts to the Bodleian Library, has accepted the Chair of Chinese, King's College, University of London, and will enter upon his duties early next year.

THE CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.

The Christmas festival was celebrated in Hongkong in the usual quiet and unostentatious manner. The weather on Christmas Day was wet and dismal, and kept many people indoors, who would rather have been out in the open, and several sporting events had to be postponed. The cricket match between the Hongkong Club and the United Services was the only fixture proceeded with, and for a part of the game the players wore mackintoshes. The play had to be curtailed.

There was a dearth of indoor entertainment, but there were a number of good films showing at the cinematograph theatres, which attracted crowded houses. One of the notable features of the festival was the ubiquity of "Jack Tar."

There is an unusually large number of men-of-war in the Harbour just now—including British, German and American ships—and Jack made the holiday a trifle more lively than it would have been without his hearty presence. The services at the various Churches were, as usual, very well attended. St. John's Cathedral was prettily decorated, and the Bishop of the Diocese (Dr. Lander) was the preacher. The German community held Divine service at the Union Church in the early morning. Pastor J. Muller officiating. The band of the S.M.S. Scharnhorst kindly gave their aid, and the service was very bright and hearty. The English service at the same Church later in the day was also well attended, the preacher being the Rev. J. Kirk Macdonald. At the Midnight Mass at the Roman Catholic Cathedral there was an extremely large attendance.

The weather was all that could be desired yesterday, the sun shining brilliantly practically all the day. A large crowd of civilians, soldiers, and sailors assembled round the ropes at Happy Valley in the afternoon, where the annual football match between the pick of the Navy and Army were engaged in an exciting struggle. A good number also watched the cricket match between the Hongkong Club and the United Services.

A yacht race took place for a cup presented by the Hon. Mr. Claud Severn, the winner being the Dorothy.

The golf links at Fanling, Deep Water Bay and Happy Valley were well attended on Christmas Day, as well as yesterday. Several large picnic parties were out yesterday and were favoured with ideal weather.

CANTON NOTES.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CANTON, December 23rd.

MILITARY PAY.

The proposal to disband as many of the soldiers in the various provinces as possible and thus reduce the military expenditure was made by the Board of War in conjunction with the General Staff Department, several months ago, and a mandate was sent out to the provinces by the President, directing that it should be gradually carried out. In view of the state of unrest in the Kwangtung province and the strong force of soldiers required to put down brigandage—which is unusually rife at the moment—Governor-General Lung considers it inadvisable at present to comply with this order. He is further of the opinion that, with the present low value of the paper currency, military pay should be drawn in subsidiary coins, instead of Government notes, at the following proportional reduction:—

30% from any amount exceeding $100
10% " " below 50.
20% " every private's pay.

It is reported that the "whole of the military circle" was mustered to discuss this proposition a few days ago, and that it gained the support of a great majority.

AN EXTENSIVE MINE.

Mr. Wong Ting Sam, a former capitalist in the Straits Settlements and now Inspector of Mines, under the Board of Trades Industry, has discovered a very extensive coal and iron mine on the Che Tung mountain in the Ko Yiu district. It is described as probably the largest mine yet discovered in Kwangtung. It covers a surface of over 30 1/2 (about 9 miles) and is very rich in coal and iron ores, and different kinds of precious stones are also found. Mr. Wong is making preparations to commence operations—and has interviewed the Civil Administrator on the subject.

ALARMS IN YUNNAN.

DR. SUN'S INFLUENCE SUSPECTED.

PEKING, December 19th.
It is stated that Talifu is in the hands of mutineers who are refusing to transmit telegrams in English or in code. An emissary of Sun Yat-sen is reported to be promoting the rebellion. Grave apprehension is felt in Tientsin and in the Shan districts, where trouble is also feared.—Reuter.

LOCAL SPORT.

HONGKONG & UNITED SERVICES.

This annual match took place on the ground of the Hongkong Cricket Club on Christmas Day and yesterday, the game ending in a narrow win for the Services by 18 runs. Hongkong took a substantial lead as the result of the first innings' batting, but the Services wielded the willow with much better success in their second venture. However they only set the Club to the comparatively easy task of scoring 135 to win. This the Club failed to do, and but for the splendid batting of the Brothers Hancock would have made a very sorry show indeed. Scores and analyses:—

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

UNITED SERVICES LEAGUE—DIVISION I.

THE ENGINEERS DEFEAT THE ARTILLERY.

For half an hour prior to the time fixed for the commencement of this anxiously-awaited match a fine mid-week crowd lined the ropes, and plenty of good-natured seasonable banter was freely passed between supporters of the two sides. The R.A. were on the field as advertised, but the Sappers were late. Strange they should have thought, that four o'clock was the proper time to start, when the game had been so well discussed beforehand.

Mr. Storrie, assisted by two Naval linesmen, Messrs. Tyler and Menadue, at 3.45 mustered the eleven as follows:—

R.G.A.—Moore; Court and Langford; Westbrook, Mullen, and Townsend; Dallman, Crane, Green, Swann, and Pinchard.

R.E.—Rogers; Coxon and Morrish; Ferrigan, Smith, and Robinson; Tucker, Lewis, Hortop, Kelly, and Sutherland.

The Gunners won the toss and speedily attacked by the left wing, but nothing came of it, and at half-time neither side had scored. In the second half Pinchard and Rogers gave an exhibition of the "shoot and save" stunt, and then the venue was shifted to the pavilion (1) end. Just like one man came the five Engineers and a few bewildering passes came off in front of Moore. Hortop snuffed the leather not more than six yards from the net, and it rested calmly inside behind the goalie. Now their blood was up and the blacks swarmed round Rogers to wipe something off the slate.

The mechanics were quite content, though to leg things stand as they were, and Lewis peppered away at every chance. Moore was good enough for all calls and he showed his excellence by some fine well-judged clearances. In fact it is not difficult to apportion the palm for "meritorious service" in this engagement to him and to Crane and Pinchard. All three gave of their best, and their best was very fine indeed.

Crane managed to get away over the half-way line and was soon afterwards quite correctly whistled up for offside, much to the disgust of a big crowd of the "Dragropes" supporters. He got hurt soon after, but quickly resumed, evidently unfit. Hereabouts the Artillery were having the best of the fun and Swann and Green tried all they knew (which is saying a lot) to balance the account. Morrish and Coxon were, however, taking no chances, the latter finding touch every time and occasionally a bit unnecessarily. Only about five minutes remained now, and a last expiring effort came out to friend Pinchard. Rogers came out to him and dealt the ball a windmill blow which luckily came off, thus clearing his lines from the last call made upon them. It was all over bar shouting, and the Royal Engineers had paved the way for a very happy Christmas by defeating their old friends and enemies by one goal to nil.

INO.

BOXING-DAY FOOTBALL.

ARMY V. NAVY.

There was an enormous crowd at Happy Valley yesterday afternoon to witness this annual encounter between the two branches of the Services. Sailors and soldiers, of course, predominated, but there was a surprisingly large number of civilian spectators also. Although the Navy was beaten by the rather substantial margin of 5 goals to 2, they were not by any means disgraced. Until some little way on in the second half they quite held their own—indeed the Army men were glad to cry "quits"—but the loss of one of their number, who had to leave the field through an injury, crippled the Navy team, and it was not until after this episode that the Military scored all their winning goals. At half-time both combinations claimed two goals after a ding-dong struggle. The second half gave promise of providing a plethora of exciting incidents, but the accident to the Navy player above referred to spoiled the game. The Army, playing together as one man, got the upper hand, and held it throughout. Kelly notched the winning goal from a beautiful centre from Mesley, the Cornwall's right winger, who was singularly uncomfortable right through the first piece. He improved wonderfully in the second moiety, however, and his dashing runs along the touch-line caused the Naval defenders much trouble. Davis, the little and elusive Army inside-right, notched his side's fourth point with a rattling shot from close in, and Green bagged the fifth after a clever individual effort. The Army centre had previously severely tested the Navy custodian with a couple of real stingers, which he had the utmost difficulty in safely negotiating. The Navy broke the soldiers' attacks at prolonged intervals, but their spells at offensive play were very fitful, and they never gave promise of reducing the opponents' lead. The game was productive of much really good football, and the Navy side put up an infinitely better display than in the match last year. The leather was swung about from wing to wing and from end to end in the first half with astonishing rapidity, and the open nature of the exchanges gave all the men opportunities to enhance their reputations, of which the majority were not loath to avail themselves. The best of spirits prevailed, and Referee F. W. Eager had a pleasant task.

THE ARCHITECTURE OF THE CHINESE IMPERIAL MAUSOLEUM.

AN EVERLASTING LIGHT.

From an interesting descriptive article in the Peking Daily News on the Architecture of the Imperial Mausoleum the following interesting information is extracted:—

THE TIKUNG.

The Tikung, or tomb proper, is situated in the Paochung. It is constructed of stone and is a very spacious cave in which the coffins were laid. The structure of the Tikung is the strongest of all architectural work in China. The Tikung was covered with soil which heaps up in the form of a dome. On the soil on the top of the Tikung, shrubs are planted. The Tikung is surrounded by walls painted in red.

THE COFFIN BEDS.

Stone beds for the coffins were constructed in the Tikung. The bed is three feet high and there is one for each coffin. The stone beds are finely carved. The bed to support the coffin of an Emperor is carved in dragons, and that which is to support the coffin of either an Empress or an Imperial Consort is carved in phoenix.

A WELL IN TIKUNG.

Behind the stone beds is a well which is very deep. The well gives out water which flows around the coffin beds in a small ditch. The ditch has outlets in every corner of the spacious cave and whenever the water rises too high it issues in tubes to the outside.

The tubes are larger at the top and small at the end which reaches the outside.

AN EVERLASTING LIGHT.

There is an everlasting light in the Tikung of every mausoleum. The light can keep on burning without outside aid for at least a century. Perhaps the light in the tombs of Emperors Chia Ching, Tao Kuang, Hsien Feng and others who died scores of years ago is still burning to-day. Eight kongs (large earthenware vessels) each of the height of five feet, were placed before the coffins. The kongs are filled with bean oil and they are connected by tubes. The oil of all the kongs flows towards the one in which flows the wick. The wick rests on a light frame. The wick is several feet long, and as it floats on the surface of the oil, it can not sink until the oil is consumed. The light will go out only in the case that all the oil in the eight kongs is consumed. The quantity of the oil in the eight kongs amounts at least to one thousand catties and is sufficient to keep a light lit for a considerable period.

FURNITURE IN THE TIKUNG.

Furniture of any kind for the daily comfort of a living person is placed in the Tikung.

FOUR GATES.

The Tikung has only one passage in the front. This passage is blocked by four gates. Every gate consists of two doors made of stone. One big stone ball is fastened to each door. At the threshold of each gate, two shallow are made just at the spot where the stone balls will be dragged to when the doors are closed from the outside, so that when the doors are closed, half of the body of the stone ball drops into the shallow while the upper half makes it impossible to open the door from outside. Therefore, once the doors are closed, they can never be opened again unless from the inside.

ACTIONS AND REACTIONS IN CHINA.

III.—EXTRATERRITORIALITY— TREATY PORTS.

It is impossible to examine in turn all the activities of foreign extraterritorialized municipal government and its influence on Chinese ideas and ideals, and the examples cited will serve to demonstrate the reality of this influence. There is also another direction in which the Treaty Ports are educating China—in the administration of justice. The various foreign Courts at Shanghai furnish, as has already been remarked, first-hand examples of Western methods, but it is when a man stands in the dock on a criminal charge that the methods and procedure of the Court are of the greatest importance to him and that he most keenly appreciates its improvements or defects, and from this point of view it is the Mixed Court that provides the best example of the superiority of foreign administration of justice and of the shortcomings of the Chinese Courts in this respect. The presiding judge at the Mixed Court is a Chinese official, it is true, and the Court administers Chinese Law, the theory being that the foreign assessor who sits with the Chinese Magistrate is not an actual participant in the trial, but is there merely to "watch the proceedings in the interests of justice," but in practice this is reversed, and the foreign assessor's voice has at least as much weight as that of the Chinese Magistrate in giving the verdict, while his mere presence is a safeguard against the worst abuses—notably bribery—of the Chinese Courts. That this system of honest, if sometimes rough-and-ready, administration of justice is appreciated by the Chinese is shown by the popularity attending the Mixed Court for civil cases that was established at Shanghai during the Revolution. This deals with purely Chinese cases, in which no foreign interest is involved, and where, consequently, the presence of a foreign assessor—and much more so his active participation in the proceedings—is strictly an instant success, and the security against corruption furnished by the presence of a foreign assessor commended itself to Chinese litigants, while it was soon found also that under this Mixed Court for civil cases business was conducted with far greater expedition—cases were no longer hung up in the old way, when there was always a huge calendar of arrears.

So much for the influence of the Treaty Ports in detailed cases. Their functional influence, and contribution towards the development of Young China, has operated in two ways—their position of immunity from Chinese authority has at the same time been an incentive and an aid to the ardent spirits. As we have seen, they have—and this again applies especially to Shanghai—repeated in China the part played by Hongkong in providing asylum for plotters, in serving as educational centres, and in revealing to the people of China the advantages that other systems of government possessed over their own. The Treaty Port Chinese Press, too, has always been able to indulge in greater freedom of criticism of Chinese officials and government than would be permitted to a journal published in a town in the interior—the Shen Pao of Shanghai is an historic example. That this liberty should occasionally develop into licence is, of course, inevitable; there have been noteworthy cases this year in which the Shanghai authorities have had to decree banishment from the Settlement against those who abused its hospitality, and the same abuse was found in the freedom of the Press, so much so that on May 1st last a Municipal Notification was issued prohibiting the "unbridled utterances of the Press," and threatening arrest and punishment for those "emitting writings and pictures subversive of peace and good order." The difficulty that has been found in this respect in preserving a just balance between freedom and necessary restrictions will continue to trouble the Settlements whenever events in China stir up strong political feeling in any direction.

These phases of the influence of the Treaty Ports might be described as sympathetic, but it has also operated in a manner that might perhaps be described as antipathetic. Though the immunity of the Settlements and Concessions from Chinese Jurisdiction has proved a blessing to the political malcontents of China, they are not always reconciled to it. The existence within the borders of China of these places where Chinese Law does not run (at all events in its usual course) is a standing advertisement, flaunted in the face of China, of her weakness and of the degree to which she has had to yield to other Powers. This is especially so in the case of the Concessions where, although their own ruler is still lord of the soil, Chinese are forbidden to reside or to own land, for here they see all the—from their point of view—evil of the Treaty Port system unrelieved by a single countervailing benefit. The sense of the wrongs (in their opinion) which their country has suffered at the hands of the world, and the knowledge of the humiliations she has undergone, have when summed up in the watchword, "The recovery of sovereign rights," proved a powerful incentive to the enthusiasts of Young China, and the Concessions and Settlements at the Treaty Ports have been concrete instances for them to cite.

Hence we find that there have been in the past constant efforts, even on the part of the unregenerate Empire, to minimize the influence and the authority of the Concessions and Settlements, and it is certain that these attempts will be continued as assiduously in the future. A poignant example of this policy of obstruction occurred as a preliminary to the Mixed Court Riots at Shanghai in December, 1905. The report of these riots says: "There was a preliminary to Friday's occurrence on the preceding day when the Magistrate (Mr. Kuan), after making another futile protest against the presence of the police cadet in Court, and his supervision of the proper execution of the sentences of the Court, retaliated by sending a runner to the Central Police Station to see that they did their duty there properly. The selected runner spent a long and presumably rather tedious day in the courtyard of the Central Police Station, where he was allowed to remain unmolested. We understand, indeed, that a letter was sent from the Council to Mr. Kuan, congratulating him on the interest he had suddenly taken in police administration, and offering his representative every facility for obtaining useful information. Circumvented in this attempt in his policy of annoyance, a policy which Mr. Kuan has himself declared he has orders from the Taotai to pursue, it would seem that only the opportunity was wanted to force matters to a more serious issue."

The constant trouble over Chapei (Paoshan) is the best example of the Chinese policy of harassing the administration of the Treaty Port Settlements and retarding their development. The town of Shanghai is situated near the borders of the Shanghai Hsien (District) and the Paoshan Hsien. As the latter district is also riverine, the town has inevitably tended to develop in that direction, in defiance of artificial political boundaries, but any attempt to secure an extension of the settlement in that direction so as to bring the outlying suburbs under municipal control, has always been met with the same refusal from the Chinese authorities—the place opened by the Treaty of Nanking was Shanghai, and the district of Paoshan must not be encroached on. The absurdity of this restricted interpretation is apparent when it is considered that in several cases the boundary line between two Hsien passes right through the centre of a city; to get a rough parallel to the Chinese attitude we must imagine that a passport to London was held to cover the City only, and that the holder of it was not allowed to proceed to Kensington. The illogicality of the Chinese contention has often been exposed—writing in March, 1899, His Majesty's Consul-General at Shanghai said: "No difficulty is experienced in buying land five miles distant from the Consulate if it lies in the Shanghai district, but the Taotai will refuse to recognize a sale in the Paoshan district although the property may be within a mile of the Consulate."

The undesirability of this state of affairs was long apparent on sanitary grounds; side by side with the largest foreign settlement in the Far East there was developing a congested district, entirely beyond foreign control, in which all the conditions of Chinese slums at their worst were exhibited, and which consequently was a serious menace to the health of the foreign community over the district border—a political border which disease germs could not be expected to respect. Matters were made still worse by the fact that a corner of the Paoshan district runs as a wedge into one of the most thickly populated parts of the suburbs of Shanghai, and the necessity of bringing this portion at all events under the same control as all the surrounding land was emphasized when it became the site of the station of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, but though years have passed since the question became urgent, all the representations that have been made have not resulted in the least weakening of the Chinese opposition.

The insurrection of last summer gave an even more striking illustration of the danger to Shanghai that this Chapei district constitutes. General Chen Chi-mei had his headquarters there, and the place promised to be a stronghold for the rebels, with possibilities for Shanghai that were, in view of the vast foreign interests represented there, almost too grave to trifle with. There was, therefore, but one thing to be done: on July 26th the Council issued a notification declaring that neither the Settlements nor the northern suburb of Chapei must be used as a base for warlike operations or as a focus for intrigue, and ordering all Chinese troops of either party forthwith to evacuate the district. This order was enforced on the following day by the Shanghai Municipal Volunteers, and the district was afterwards policed by a British naval force.

In addition to serious incidents of this nature, there are other constant sources of friction of a minor kind, all showing the Chinese intention to limit the development of the Treaty Ports as severely as possible. For instance, there are certain

Assured by the Occasional Use of
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

To reach a green old age and enjoy good health can only be obtained by the care of the system. It is from the little irregularities of the system that the common ailments arise, and nature gives many indications of the approach of these complaints which, if treated at once, may be warded off. Growing old ought not to mean growing weak and feeble. It does not mean weakness or feebleness for those who eat with a good appetite and sound digestion. It is of the utmost importance that old people should retain the power to digest and assimilate food, which is the sole source of physical strength. When age brings feebleness, it is generally because of the failure to assimilate the nutrition contained in food. To those in declining years who find that Nature responds less readily to the demands made upon her, and who need a mild yet searching remedy to keep their system in proper working order, there is nothing like Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They are a perfect Blood Purifier and a positive and permanent cure for Biliousness, Indigestion, Constipation, Headaches, Sallow Complexion, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Piles, Bloated, and all Female Ailments.

DR. MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS

ACTIONS AND REACTIONS IN CHINA.

roads running through the Paoshan territory which, being municipal property, are controlled by the Municipal Police. At the entrance to every alley-way, and as near as they can possibly approach to the municipal road without setting foot upon it, there are stationed a couple of the Chapei police. Their presence is clearly without reference to the needs of public order or of controlling the traffic, and they are evidently there to annoy and if possible interfere with the Municipal police administration—a state of affairs which inevitably results in occasional conflicts between the two bodies. There have, too, been instances in which the Chapei police have, in utter defiance of Treaty, arrested foreigners, haled them to the police station, and mulcted them in fines. Again, Chinese companies have been given a monopoly of lighting and water-rights in this district, and foreigners living just over the Settlement border who desire to do so find it impossible to derive their supplies from the Shanghai companies owing to the obstruction of the Chapei authorities when it is necessary to lay pipes—an obstruction which they have even been known to carry to such an extreme as to presume to forbid an increase in an already existing installation! These incidents illustrate some of the forms in which the Chinese objection to extraterritoriality, as crystallized in the Treaty Port Settlements, may be expected to take in the future.

The question of opening new ports is bound to arise, too, sooner or later, and then the conditions under which they are to be opened will be an important point. There is, of course, a Treaty right, under the (Japanese) Peking Protocol to demand Settlements at every such port; but, in view of the cases of Yochow, Santu, etc., China may be expected, as soon as she sees that such opening is inevitable, to claim to do it "voluntarily," and then urge that, as the Commissioner of Customs said in the case of Santu, there ports, "being opened by China herself, differ from the ports opened by Treaty." It is for this reason, that I have started a wharf tax, etc., to be apportioned to the Municipal Council in order to provide for jetties, bunds, roads, and bridges, and in order to show China's independence. Nor can it be safely assumed that the Peking Protocol will necessarily prove an adequate protection against this danger, unless it is fortified by some other Agreement: the Protocol provides merely that "Settlements . . . shall be provided," and says nothing as to who is to have the deciding voice in the selection of the Settlements. It can easily be seen that it would be a simple matter for China to render this provision nugatory by providing only Settlements in unsuitable situations, while in any case the operation of the clause would be practically nullified if at any port half-a-dozen Powers were all seeking Settlements at the same time. A reproduction of the Shanghai International Settlement would appear to be the remedy for this state of affairs, should it ever arise.

But the most important aspect of the Treaty Ports is, after all, the commercial. Theoretically, they should be centres from which imported foreign goods can circulate freely throughout all the country served by them, and, conversely, which draw native produce freely from the whole of their trade area for foreign export. Foreign goods landed at a Treaty Port should be able to circulate without restriction after the whole of the dues—import and transit—have been paid, but the limitations of the transit certificate system, and the frequency with which it is violated by officials in the interior, have greatly impaired the efficiency of the Treaty Ports in this respect. At present it may be said that, in many cases, the Treaty Port is little more than a bonded warehouse and the import duties mere registration fees, and that except through limited areas where foreign influence is so near at hand that violation of transit passes is scarcely safe, foreign imported goods circulate only on the same footing as native produce that has paid no import duty, while the power of Treaty Port merchants to purchase goods from the interior for export is even more limited. The Treaty Ports will never attain their full commercial development until either the state of China makes it possible to rely on transit passes being everywhere respected (and even then there would be need of a simplification of their modus operandi), or likin is abolished and a consolidated tax substituted.

Dr. Sun's suggestion of throwing open the whole of China to foreign trade and residence was very premature, and no idea of that sort can be considered as within the sphere of practical politics until, no matter what reforms she may have accomplished in other directions, China has put this whole question of internal taxation on a proper basis. If the opening of the interior to foreign trade and residence was to be a reality and not a mere polite fiction, it would imply that every town in the interior would stand on the same basis as a Treaty Port, which would mean that China would lose the whole of the likin and transit dues now collected on foreign goods. It is obvious that, even if there were not insuperable obstacles on other grounds, this must always stand in the way of a general opening of the whole of the country until China is in a position to collect one duty and one duty only—12½ per cent., or whatever it may be—on foreign goods at their port of entry, and then leave them free to move to any part of the country without further restrictions or taxation.

CHINA'S MERCHANT MARINE.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN VIEW.

Since the first marine court of inquiry in China was held (in the case of the C.M.S. Tuckey), it becomes known that such inquiries are to be a recognized feature in the mercantile marine law of the country, says the N.C. Daily News. At the present, of course, the amount of merchant shipping owned by Chinese is very small, but signs are not wanting that it may shortly be considerably increased, and it is learnt that, wherever necessary, courts similar to that which sat in Shanghai this month will be constituted.

One important feature in the inquiry just concluded is the position of Chinese officers. The Tuckey had as second mate an uncertificated person whose name was given as Ching Ching. It is suggested that, in all likelihood, he had risen from the position of quartermaster to be second mate, and indeed his name would indicate that he was a man of small education. Within a period of about nine months the Chinese hope to have a sufficient number of men trained in navigation, both theoretic and practical, to be able to undertake such duties.

THE WOOSUNG COLLEGE.

The men will come from the Mercantile Marine College at Woosung, which for the past two years has been training up men as officers. The cost of this institution has been roughly $6,000 per month, more than two-thirds of which the Government has borne. After their course on shore, a number of the students are now ready to go to sea for a nine months' training in the practical side of the work. The steamer Pooming has been secured for this purpose, and in the meantime an application has been made to the Commissioner of Customs for the usual permit. All going well, she will leave in a few days with the first of the Chinese students abroad.

At the end of the nine months, it is thought that a number of the students will pass an examination equivalent to that of third mate at Home, and all going well it is hoped to place them on board Chinese steamers. All the students at the College are of good education, possessing an acquaintance with English, and thus a good class of men for officers' most interested in the scheme do not hesitate to admit that foreign captains will for long be a necessity of the case. For the time being the most that can be aimed at is to lay the foundation for the officering of Chinese ships by Chinese. It is thought that a start can best be made by placing them in subordinate positions.

Don't Trifle With a Cough! Cure it Now.

There is positively nothing equal to Angier's Emulsion for coughs, bronchitis and all chest affections. Not only does it heal and strengthen throat and lungs, but it promotes appetite, aids digestion and builds up strength. For upwards of twenty years Angier's Emulsion has been prescribed by the medical profession and used in the hospitals. It is the standard approved remedy for coughs, lung troubles, and wasting diseases.

ANGIER'S EMULSION

"Cured my Cough and built me up splendidly."

65, Leonard Street, Burslem.
Dear Sir,—At the beginning of the winter I caught a severe cold, which ended in an attack of bronchitis. I was advised to try Angier's Emulsion, and I am thankful to say that it soon cured my cough, and, in addition, it has built me up splendidly. I can honestly say that it has done more for me than anything I have ever tried. Being an Insurance Agent, I am exposed to all sorts of weather, but since taking your Emulsion, although I have returned home at night on many occasions wet through to the skin, I have had no return of my bronchial trouble. I shall continue to take it, as I find I am putting on flesh, and I feel the benefit of it in many different ways.

REVIEWS.

An Irish Gentleman: GEORGE HENRY MOORE: His Travels, His Racing, His Politics. By Colonel MAURICE GONNOZ MOORE, C.B. With a Preface by George Moore, Illustrated. London: T. Werner Laurie, Ltd.

George Henry Moore was the connecting link in Irish politics between Dan O'Connell and Isaac Butt. In his childhood precocious, in his schooldays, clever, in his youth romantic, in his early manhood wild, by the tragic death of his brother he was influenced to forsake horse-racing and its associations—at any rate, for a time—and settle down to the wise administration of the patriarchal estate in Co. Mayo and the rearing of a family, one of whom is the very able littérateur, writer of this preface, and the other Colonel Moore, author of this biography. From Oseott College, he went up to Cambridge with every promise of a distinguished scholarly career. Unfortunately, he fell into a fast set, and distinguished himself only in billiard playing. He was removed from Cambridge, and returned to Mayo with a keen desire for life, for horses, for hounds, for racing, for duelling, for everything except drinking. If the acquaintance of Cambridge were bad, the sporting squires of Mayo were worse, so he was packed off to London to study law. Entanglements with a woman led to a temporary estrangement with his mother, and his financial allowance could not bear the strain of his extravagance in London, Bath, and Cheltenham. As the affair of the heart did not turn out well, he spent a spell in travel and sketching in Russia, the Caucasus and Syria, nursing his melancholy in the approved fashion of the time, until a visit in the Syrian desert from the love of his youth, a visit lasting over two years (of which there is no record), appears to have brought about a cure, and eventually his return to Ireland. They doubtless got to know each other better in the solitudes of Syria, and knowledge is often a cure for the fever of early love.

In his horse-breeding and racing, the subject of this biography was associated with his brother Augustus (afterwards killed), and they bred some famous racers, including Anonymous, Wolfdog, Erin-go-bragh, Coranna, and Croaghpatrick. Coranna won the Chester Cup in 1846, and the brothers won a clear £9,000, after paying expenses and a share to Lord Waterford out of their total winnings of £17,000. Coranna had won the Caesars with in 1843. Later in life, when he took up racing again during a temporary absence from the House of Commons, he won the Stewards' Cup at Goodwood with Croaghpatrick in a record field of forty-five, and in the same week won the Chesterfield Cup with the same horse. That was in 1850. In the following year, Croaghpatrick was beaten for the Royal Hunt Cup at Ascot by Canary, to whom he was conceding two stones.

After his second excursion into horse-breeding and racing, he returned to the political arena, fighting five contested elections and two petitions. He was a landlord, but nevertheless he was a lover of the democracy and sympathetic in a practical way to the distressed lower classes of Ireland. Fighting a lone hand at times, he was successful, on the whole, in bringing together divergent personalities, and it was really in his time that the first substantial and successful effort was made to create a United Ireland party which would not only be independent of the two great parties, Whig and Tory, but would hold the balance of power in the House of Commons. The Fenian organisation came into existence during this period, and although it does not appear from this interesting record that Moore instigated, using his tongue and pen to justify what might be termed legitimate rebellion to secure Home Rule for Ireland. At this time, Gladstone and others were sympathetic to the efforts of Italians to set up a united and independent Italy, and Moore, and others like him, did not see why Irishmen should not use every weapon in their power to secure a Government for Ireland free from the trammels of the English Government. We do not propose to discuss political and religious questions, and content ourselves by stating that those who seek reasons for establishing an Irish Legislature in Dublin may find help in these pages. Several names that will go down in history are mentioned by the author—who does not appear to have a high opinion of Gladstone as a statesman, and one of the many is William Johnston of Ballykilbeg, who, it may be remembered by some of our readers, was father of the late Mr. L. A. M. Johnston, Postmaster-General of Hongkong in 1904. It seems characteristic of Irish affairs that Moore's death occurred at a time when he had been summoned to Ireland to deal with attacks upon him as a landlord (April, 1870). How often has the hound bitten the hand that fed it! His son-biographer writes as follows in his epilogue: "We are in a better position for judging, after forty years of agitation, led first by Mr. Butt himself, and then by Mr. Parnell and his successors; and yet in such a speculation we ought not to be guided solely by the subsequent course of history. There were special reasons why George Henry Moore might have succeeded where others failed. Mr. Butt was a lawyer, and believing that he could persuade Parliament of the justice of his course, he attempted to effect a revolution by argument; he does not seem to have understood that in the House of Commons, full of skilful debaters, one argument can always be met by another equally cogent, and that parties are no more affected by logic and eloquence than the rocks of the shore by the waves that seem for a moment to overwhelm them. Parnell appreciated the situation more correctly, but he was hampered by the crimes that clung round the Land League, and by the opposition of the landlords, naturally exasperated by attacks on their property. One can perceive from a perusal of this history that the agitation for self-government would have been conducted by Moore on a plan different from that adopted by either Butt or Parnell: there would have been no tumbling of houses or tumbling of landlords, but he would have pursued his object with the same force, implacable, far-seeing spirit as Mr. Parnell. When he died, Ireland seemed more fit for self-government than it has ever been since: landlords and tenants were not on unfriendly terms; and the Protestants, alienated from England by Mr. Gladstone's Disestablishment policy, were in a frame of mind for conciliation. If such a consummation were indeed possible, and if Providence had so directed, how much of anger and crime and misfortune might have been avoided!"

The biography is a most interesting one, and will be helpful to students of political history. It is to be regretted that more material was not available from Moore's notebooks and letters to give further details of his experiences in Syria. A man of great natural ability and considerable culture and gifted with power to use the English language with picturesque effect, a work on his early experiences could not fail to have interest above the common. But his temperament was antipathetic to the drudgery of sustained writing, and so we have doubtless to lament the loss of a masterpiece.

THROUGH RHEUMATIC FEVER.

NOW IN PERFECT HEALTH.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS EFFECT A RAPID CURE IN CEYLON.

There is no more painful disease than Rheumatic Fever. Besides the ordinary fever symptoms, such as heavy aches, thirst, constipation and loss of appetite, rheumatic pains shoot from joint to joint and limb to limb, causing such agony that the patient is utterly prostrated and dare not even move.

It will be understood then that Mr. M. D. P. de Silva spoke in all sincerity when he said that it was impossible to praise too warmly the medicine—Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people—which rescued him from the state of misery in which this dreadful malady had held him for many months. "Rheumatic Fever had reduced me to a mental and physical wreck," said he, "but within six weeks Dr. Williams' Pink Pills drove the Rheumatism right out of my system."

A draughtsman by profession, Mr. de Silva is employed in the Chief Engineer's Office, Ceylon Government Railways, Colombo. "My illness began three years ago," he explained. "Then I was continually being prostrated by feverishness, pains in and tenderness of the joints and in the muscles of my body. (From a photograph.)" came so bad that for days at a time I could not leave my bed. My appetite vanished completely. Night was a time of absolute torture, for I could not sleep with the pains. Medicines failed to bring me relief. No one knows the intensity of the suffering I endured during the many months this lasted.

"On several occasions I had come across articles in the papers giving details of how acute cases of Rheumatism had been completely cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. But I thought it impossible for them to cure such a bad case as mine until a friend told me that they had done him, personally, wonderful good. This friend's recommendation was sufficient to make me give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. Within two weeks from starting them the pains had practically gone from my joints and back, my nights were restful, my appetite had improved amazingly. Within six weeks they had driven the rheumatism right out of my system. I am in perfect health now, due, undoubtedly, to the curative powers contained in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I cannot say too much in their favour."

"Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people are a proved remedy for all diseases due to impure, watery blood and disordered nerves, such as Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Indigestion, Nervous Debility, Anemia, and the ailments of adolescence. From medicines vendors everywhere, and the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 84, Szechuen Road, Shanghai, one bottle for $1.50, six for $8 post free.
